Course Description

In caricature, philosophers are the wrong people entirely to ask about money, since they either have disdain for it, or simply aren't very good at making much of it. But at least since Aristotle, philosophers have had surprising things to say about money, and thinking about money is an excellent way to think through questions about the nature of value, reality, and morality. This course will focus on three philosophical issues provoked by money: money and the nature of value, distributive justice and the ethics of wealth, and the relationship between money and happiness.

Evaluation

Weekly Questions: 15%

First Philosophical Paper: 30%

Research Paper: 20%

Final Philosophical Paper: 35%

Due: Tuesday, February 26th

Accepted any time before Thursday, April 16th

Due: Thursday, April 11th

All evaluated material will be graded on a scale from A+ to F. To weight assignments and calculate the final grade, these letter grades will be converted into the standard 4.0 scale:

4.3 – A+      3.3 – B+      2.3 – C+      1.3 – D+      0.0 – F
4.0 – A      3.0 – B      2.0 – C      1.0 – D
3.7 – A-      2.7 – B-      1.7 – C-

The arithmetic that will calculate your final grade will follow this formula:

$(W. Questions).15 + (1st Phil Paper).30 + (Research Paper).20 + (2nd Paper).35 = Final Grade$

This course has no Registrar administered final exam, only a final paper.

Writing and the grading thereof is a factor in the evaluation of your work for this course. For further explanation, see the University Calendar at <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2.html>

Weekly questions are to be submitted in class and will not be accepted late.

Late papers are accepted, with a penalty of one full grade per 24-hour period late. So, an A-paper submitted between 24 and 48 hours after it was due would receive a C-. Once a paper is late, it should be submitted via email (to me at dgdick@ucalgary.ca) as soon as it is ready.

The final grade will be based on the credit accumulated from the various assignments, so it is mathematically possible to pass the course without turning in any particular assignment. But this strategy is not recommended.

Weekly Questions:

Each week, on a day of your choice, I'd like you to submit a question based on the reading for the day that you submit the question.

The question you write should convince me that you've read the day's reading, at least well enough to be confused by it.

I'm not kidding: confusion is a philosophical heuristic, it either helps you identify a place where you don't understand, or where the argument doesn't make sense. Either one of these counts as philosophical progress.

These questions and their explanations need not be any longer than about half a page. (I'll post an example of what I mean to Blackboard.)

Weekly questions are due at the beginning of each class, in hard copy. You can only submit a weekly question on a day you attend class. (This is also a way of encouraging and tracking attendance.)

There are 13 weeks including this first one, but I'll only be asking for 12 weekly questions from you this semester. It's entirely up to you which day you'd like to pass on.

Extra weekly questions beyond this 12 will be read, but will not count for any extra credit.

Philosophical Papers:

Will be in the form of philosophical essays written in response to topics I will distribute in advance of the days the papers are due.

Further instructions will be included when those topics are distributed.

Research Paper:

Beyond the two philosophical papers you will write for this class, you owe me one shorter research paper. To my knowledge, this is the second Philosophy of Money course ever and so has no canonical set of texts or sources. I have compiled an archive, but there is no reason to think it is exhaustive, so I am asking you in your research paper to bring me one new source relating to the philosophy of money. This helps me, obviously, but it will also help you to practice looking at the world with a philosophical eye.

Early in the class, I will distribute a list of all the sources I know about so far, and it will be your task in this assignment to alert me to something that is philosophically interesting about money that is not on this list. In a paper that is approximately 1000 words you should provide me with three things: 1) a reference to this source so that I can locate it, 2) a description of the source, and 3) (which is most important) a discussion of why this source is philosophically interesting.

This paper can be submitted at any point in the semester, but no later than the last day of class, Thursday, April 11th. Obviously, it is to your advantage to submit it long before this, since you have another paper due for this class soon after that, and work tends to pile up at the end of the semester.

INTELLECTUAL HONESTY

Intellectual honesty is the cornerstone of the development and acquisition of knowledge and requires that the contribution of others be acknowledged. As a result, cheating or plagiarism on any assignment or examination is regarded as an extremely serious academic offence, the penalty for which may be an F on the assignment and possibly also an F in the course, academic probation, or requirement to withdraw. The University Calendar states that plagiarism exists when:

- the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test;
- parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author;
- the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source; and/or
- a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted. Plagiarism occurs not only when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, but also when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. A bibliography is insufficient to establish which portions of the student's work are taken from external sources; footnotes or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose.

ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATION

It is the student's responsibility to request academic accommodation. If you are a student with a documented disability who may require academic accommodation and have not registered with the Disability Resource Centre, contact their office at 220-8237. Students who have not registered with the Disability Resource Centre are not eligible for formal academic accommodation. You are also required to discuss your needs with your instructor no later than fourteen (14) days after the start of this course.

STUDENTS' UNION REPRESENTATIVES

The Faculty of Arts Representatives are: Sarah Damberger arts1@su.ucalgary.ca; Hana Kadri arts2@su.ucalgary.ca; Kelsy Norman arts3@su.ucalgary.ca; Jack Mills arts4@su.ucalgary.ca

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION AND PROTECTION OF PRIVACY (FOIP) ACT

The University of Calgary is under the jurisdiction of the provincial FOIP Act in all aspects of its operations as a publicly funded institution. The Department of Philosophy ensures the student's right to privacy by requiring all graded assignments be returned to the student directly from the instructor.
