COURSE INFORMATION
In this course, we study the development of continental philosophy from the early twentieth century to the beginning of the twenty-first century. We examine the philosophical ideas of thinkers from a range of philosophical movements: phenomenology, the Frankfurt School, and post-structuralism. The material on the course explores questions concerning ontology (philosophies of being), epistemology (theories of knowledge), language, subjectivity, social and political thought, and ethics. Class participation is strongly encouraged. Students will be expected to attend class having read the material and to raise questions and engage in the discussions throughout the term.

COURSE OBJECTIVES/LEARNING OUTCOMES
- Students will read difficult, complex books that initially will be difficult to understand.
  - Further, students will learn to determine whether the book or chapter is positioning itself against another view, either explicitly or implicitly, and be able to state what this view is.
  - Finally, students will acquire the ability to reread and analyze these books on their own and be able to articulate the major and minor arguments made to support the overall argument.
- Students will be able to ask probing and pertinent questions about any material that they do not understand, or ideas that confuse them, or viewpoints with which they disagree.
- Students will learn to write essays that contain clear, convincing, grammatically correct arguments.

REQUIRED TEXTS:
Horkheimer, Eclipse of Reason. Continuum/Bloomsbury.
Kristeva, Strangers to Ourselves. Columbia.

It is essential that students use the translations and the editions listed above. Please order the books early enough so that you have them on the first day of classes. Failure to use the assigned editions and translations with correct pagination for your essay will result in an F.
