COURSE INFORMATION
This course puts two theories of the state in dialogue with each other: that of Plato’s Republic and Rousseau’s The Social Contract. We will use an experiential learning pedagogy called Reacting to the Past which will require us to grapple not just with the theoretical arguments offered in these texts but also with the practical challenges of running a state according to these principles. The word “ideal” in the course title is thus somewhat tongue in cheek.

PREREQUISITE(S)
Two previous courses in Philosophy, one of which must be Philosophy 301, 303, 305, 307, 309, or 311.

COURSE OBJECTIVES/LEARNING OUTCOMES
By the end of the class students will be able to:

- Recognize major thinkers and texts related to Ancient Athens, including Plato’s Republic and Pericles’ funeral oration.
- Recognize major thinkers and texts related to the Enlightenment and the French Revolution, including Rousseau’s The Social Contract and Burke’s Reflections on the Revolution in France.
- Describe some of the major political, social, and philosophical theories of state power and legitimacy found in these texts.
- Understand some of the practical issues faced by states, including finances, internal and external threats, and conflicts between public and private interests.

Students must also engage with questions such as:

- Is democracy a good form of government?
- Should limitations be imposed on free speech?
- Must citizens receive special training or education to be entitled to participate in government?
- Under what circumstances should people be admitted as citizens?
- When, if ever, is political violence justified?
- Should people who have experienced serious wrongs seek reconciliation or retributive justice?
- What role does and should the press play in political life?

Finally, students will develop a number of practical skills including:

- Devising and presenting logical arguments, supported by evidence.
- Using research skills to find multiple resources to support arguments.
- Verbal express, writing skills, and organization of ideas.
- Criticizing opposing viewpoints and defending their own.
- Collaborating with others as a member of a team.
REQUIRED/RECOMMENDED TEXTBOOKS, READINGS AND MATERIALS

The following two books are required and can be purchased from the University Bookstore:

Students will also need access to the following two texts in some edition or other. Copies of the editions below can be purchased at the bookstore, but in both cases solid editions of the texts can be found freely online. Links to recommended online versions will be posted on D2L.

COURSE ASSESSMENT AND EVALUATION

The class will be divided into three sections: Athens (January 16 – February 25th), French Revolution (February 27th – April 2nd) and a class Postmortem (April 7th – 14th).

After each of the first two class sections students will be required to submit a learning reflection essay, together with supporting materials documenting their learning activities during the unit.

Each student will then meet with me for a learning conference in which we will discuss the learning reflection and the student’s portfolio of work, and collaboratively determine a grade for the unit.

Students who are satisfied with a maximum grade of B+ for the class may complete only these components, which will be weighted equally in calculating the final grade.

Students who aim to receive an A grade of some sort, or who wish to improve upon the grade they received based on the first two units, may submit a final project for the class (worth 40%). After submitting the project students will meet with me for a learning conference to discuss the project, and collaboratively determine a grade for the class as a whole.

THERE WILL BE NO REGISTRAR SCHEDULED FINAL EXAM.

Academic Accommodations
It is the student’s responsibility to request academic accommodations according to the University policies and procedures. The student accommodation policy can be found at ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf.

Students needing an Accommodation because of a disability or medical condition should communicate this need to Student Accessibility Services in accordance with the Procedure for Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/procedure-for-accommodations-for-students-with-disabilities.pdf. Students needing an Accommodation in relation to their coursework or to fulfil requirements for a graduate degree, based on a protected ground other than disability, should communicate this need, preferably in writing, to their instructor.

Absence or Missed Course Assessments
Students who are absent from class assessments (tests, participation activities, or other assignments) should inform their instructors as soon as possible. Instructors may request that evidence in the form of documentation be provided. If the reason provided for the absence is acceptable, instructors may decide that any arrangements made can take forms other than make-up tests or assignments. For example, the weight of a missed grade may be added to another assignment or test. For information on possible forms of documentation, including statutory declarations, please see ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html

Writing Assessment and Support
The assessment of all written assignments—and, to a lesser extent, written exam responses—is based in part on writing skills. This includes correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.), as well as general clarity and organization. Research papers must include a thorough and accurate citation of sources. Students are also encouraged to use Writing Support Services for assistance (one-on-one appointments, drop-in support and writing workshops). For more information, and other services offered by the Student Success Centre, please visit ucalgary.ca/ssc.

Students violating this policy are subject to discipline under the University of Calgary’s Non-Academic Misconduct policy.

Academic Misconduct/Honesty
Cheating or plagiarism on any assignment or examination is an extremely serious academic offense, the penalty for which will be an F on the assignment or an F in the course, and possibly a disciplinary sanction such as probation, suspension, or expulsion. For information on academic misconduct and its consequences, please see the University of Calgary Calendar at ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k.html.

Intellectual honesty requires that your work include adequate referencing to sources. Plagiarism occurs when you do not acknowledge or correctly reference your sources. If you have questions about referencing, please consult your instructor.
