COURSE INFORMATION

Charles Mills (1951-2021) was once described as by fellow philosopher Christopher Lebron as "our black Socrates". Mills was on the forefront of placing race, class, and gender into mainstream philosophical thought. Perhaps best known for his scathing critique of the whiteness of western political theory, Mills also made important contributions in metaphysics and epistemology. This class will be a deep dive into his views on race, racism, white ignorance, and the prospects for a radical revisioning of the liberal tradition.

PREREQUISITE(S)

Consent of the department.

COURSE OBJECTIVES/LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Deep knowledge of Charles Mills’ views on race, racism, white ignorance, and the prospects for a radical revisioning of the liberal tradition.
- Ability to critically digest, interpret, and analyze complex sources
- Ability to write a convincing argument that takes adequate account of alternative positions
- Ability to engage in constructive, respectful, oral and written argumentation

REQUIRED/RECOMMENDED TEXTBOOKS, READINGS AND MATERIALS

There are three main texts for the class:

These are available as ebooks via the University library, as well as the usual book sellers. Due to the late addition of the course to the schedule they are not currently available via the University bookstore. Additional readings will be made available via D2L.

COURSE ASSESSMENT AND EVALUATION

Assessment in this class will be based on the following components:

Weekly questions: Each week by the end of the day on Wednesday (i.e. the night before the class meeting on Thursday), I’d like you to submit a question based on one of the readings for that week. The question you write should demonstrate that you’ve read the reading well enough to be at least confused by it. As my colleague David Dick points out, “confusion is a philosophical heuristic, it either helps you identify a place where you don’t understand, or where the argument doesn’t make sense. Either one of these counts as philosophical progress.”
Weekly questions and their explanations/context should not generally be longer than 300 words.

Over the 13 weeks of the term you need to submit 10 weekly questions. It’s up to you which weeks, you wish to submit questions on. No extra credit will be given for questions beyond the ten.

Questions should be submitted to the Dropbox set up on D2L for this purpose, or in person in class on Tuesday.

Participation in discussion: You are expected to be an active contributor to class discussion. It is also expected that your contributions be respectful and constructive.

Briefing papers: Two briefing papers explaining two different aspects of Mills thought are required for this class. These papers should be approximately 1500 words, and should be written in language accessible to a non-specialist (though not a non-philosopher). A good (albeit longer) model are the papers published in the Philosophy Compass (https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/journal/17479991).

Briefing papers will be graded pass/fail. Failing papers may be resubmitted until such time as they are judged a pass. The instructor will meet with each student to discuss the briefing papers after submission.

The first paper should be initially submitted by noon on February 11th. The second should be initially submitted by noon on March 11th. They may be submitted earlier. Dropboxes will be set up on D2L for this purpose.

The letter grade for the briefing papers will be determined as follows:
2 Passing Briefing Papers = A (4.0)
1 Passing Briefing Paper= B (3.0)
0 Passing Briefing Papers= F (0.0)

Term Paper: The term paper for this class is due on April 22nd at noon. More detailed instructions on the paper will be provided after the winter break.

Students wishing instructor feedback on a draft paper should submit the draft by April 8th, and must book a meeting to discuss the draft with the instructor (written feedback will not be provided).

The instructor will meet with each student to discuss the term paper after submission.
